Mirage:

Enigmas of race, difference and desire

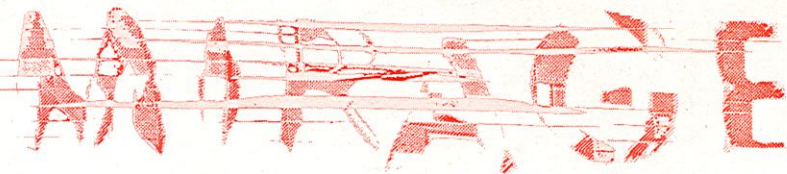

Bulletin

MAY 1995

ICA

CONTEMPORARY ARTS

Sponsored by TOSHIBA

This month the ICA presents an inspirational and ambitious project, Mirage - Enigmas of Race, Difference and Desire. Inspired by the writings of influential black theorist Frantz Fanon, particularly Black Skin, White Masks, the programme presents new ideas across a range of artforms which develop some of the issues found in his work - as, more than 30 years after his death, artists continue to negotiate cultural identity and difference.

Opening with a conference, the season features new commissions reflecting on wide-ranging aspects of black identity by artists, performers and film-makers from the UK, US, Caribbean and Africa.

From Raoul Peck's remarkable feature film to Keith Khan's sensory installation Wigs of Wonderment, Isaac Julien's new work for the concourse, and the unpredictable appearances of Ronnie Fraser-Munro's cast of characters, Mirage is unmissable!

The ICA would like to thank David Bailey for curating most of the season, Homi K Bhabha for his invaluable advice and support, and - of course - all the participating artists.

A fully illustrated inIVA/ICA catalogue of the visual arts, live art and cinema works in this season, with essays by Kobena Mercer, David A Bailey and Catherine Ugwu, is available during the season at the special price of £14.95 (mail order price £17.95 + £2.35 postage). 10% discount to ICA members.

The Mirage exhibition is organised in collaboration with the Institute of International Visual Arts

Frantz Fanon 1925-61

"O my body, make of me always a man who questions!"

Frantz Fanon Black Skin, White Masks

Born in 1925 in colonial Martinique, Frantz Fanon served in the French army during World War 2. He later studied medicine, specialising in psychoanalysis, where he encountered the work of Jacques Lacan. In 1952 his first book Black Skin, White Masks was published - a devastating critique of the psychological effects of colonialism.

Author of several plays, Fanon's literary circle included Jean-Paul Sartre and Aimé Césaire. His interest in language and psychology became fused with a political urgency when he was stationed in Algeria at the start of the War of Independence in 1954. He became a member of the Front de Libération Nationale, and in 1960 was appointed Ambassador of the Algerian Provisional Government to Ghana. Shortly afterwards, he was diagnosed with leukemia, and died in 1961 at the age of 36.

Fanon's remarkable prose - at once scientific and poetic, personal and political - reflects his multiple roles as writer, psychiatrist, philosopher and political activist. His works, Studies in a Dying Colonialism (published 1959), The Wretched of the Earth (published 1961) and Toward the African Revolution (published posthumously in 1964) have established Frantz Fanon as the most articulate critic of Western colonialism.

Toshiba is proud to support the ICA in its mission to promote a better understanding of contemporary arts to an ever-increasing audience. As a company committed to people and the future through innovation and creativity, it is both exciting and appropriate that Toshiba should join forces with an organisation that shares our determination to promote a better appreciation of the arts, science and technology.

MIRAGE

12 May - 16 July

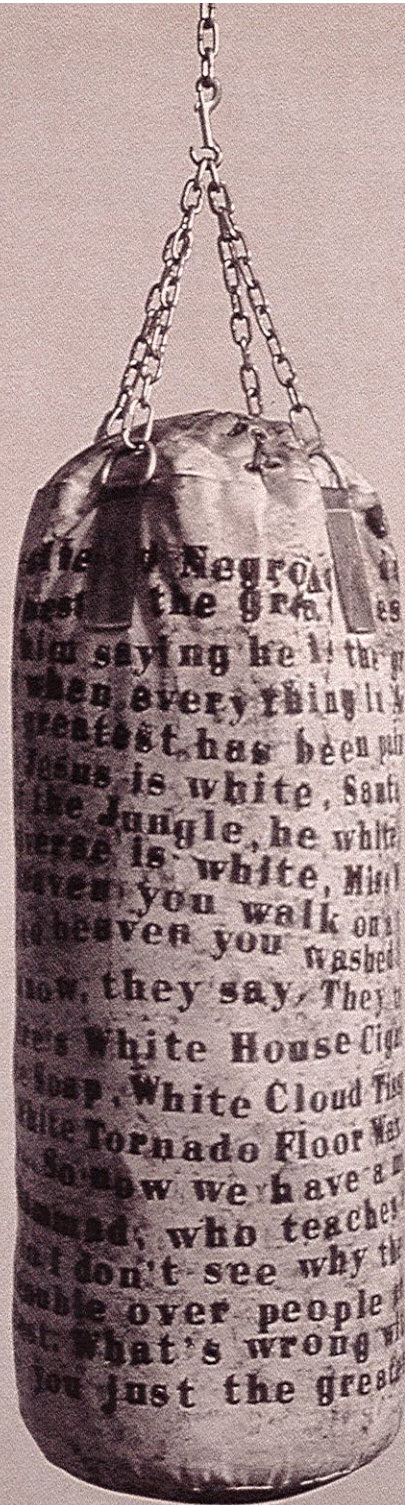

Organised in collaboration with the Institute of International Visual Arts (inIVA) An exhibition which charts the influence of Frantz Fanon and his text Black Skin, White Masks upon a generation of young black artists, bringing together British artists Isaac Julien, Sonia Boyce, Eddie George, Trevor Mathison and Steve McQueen with international artists Marc Latamie, (from Fanon's birthplace Martinique), Lyle Ashton Harris, Glenn Ligon and Renée Green (all from the USA). Using a variety of materials such as sugar and gravel, and working with still and moving images, text and sound, they present a unique series of interdisciplinary installations. Five of the artists have been commissioned by the Institute of International Visual Arts to create new works for the show.

Renée Green's work REVUE examines, through text and image, how Josephine Baker was regarded by contemporary critics as an archetype of exotic African sexuality, engendering fear and fascination. In his series of black and white stencilled canvases Glenn Ligon uses text to raise important issues concerning race and identity. Fresh from a successful show at Jack Tilton gallery, NY, Lyle Ashton Harris exhibits a new series of photographic work exploring family bonds and homoeroticism, through the medium of portraiture. Marc Latamie presents video footage within a typical Caribbean wooden hut to evoke plantation life, while young British film-maker Steve McQueen premieres his new film installation FIVE EASY PIECES – a visually stunning essay on voyeurism, power, sexuality and race. Sonia Boyce's photographic installation dramatises the moment of tension created when black and white lovers kiss. Eddie George and Trevor Mathison of Black Audio Film Collective create a new sound installation, THE BLACK ROOM, a deathbed meditation by Fanon which looks at whether his hopes for liberated Africa have been realized or betrayed. Finally, celebrated British film-maker Isaac Julien presents a new short film THAT RUSH! which examines the disturbing popularity of ultra-conservative TV chat shows in the US.

That Rush!

THE MAN BY THE SHORE L'HOMME DES QUAIS

DIRECTED AND WRITTEN BY RAOUL PECK WITH JENNIFER ZUBAR, TOTO BISSAINTHE
FRANCE/1992/105 MINS FRENCH WITH ENGLISH SUBTITLES

In THE MAN BY THE SHORE, Haitian director Raoul Peck powerfully conveys the oppressive atmosphere of Haiti during the Duvalier dictatorship, telling his story – autobiographical in part – through the eyes of a young girl. As she observes the violent, nightmarish world of the tonton macoutes, her only escape is into a vividly imagined fantasy world where she encounters 'the man by the shore'. Revealing, in flash-back, her most haunting memories, she comes of age in a climate of violence and fear, but also of love and fantasy.

Internationally renowned for this feature and for his docu-drama on Patrice Lumumba Death of a Prophet, Raoul Peck has throughout his career explored and examined the complex realities of post-colonial experience.

RACISM: REPRESENTATION AND REALITY

In 1996, the Race Relations Act will have been in place for twenty years, yet a level of institutional discrimination and racial violence continues.

A Sivanandan, Director of the Institute of Race Relations, reflects on the way in which racism is now being portrayed as a problem of language, representation and identity. As an activist within black struggle for thirty years, and author of A Different Hunger and Communities of Resistance, Sivanandan is well-placed to examine the interplay between race and class, the ideology of individualism and the position of a black middle class within Britain's increasingly polarised society.

NEW BLOOD

'The world is changing fast. Why isn't fiction?' Deborah Levy

In 1994 the ICA launched NEW BLOOD - a competition for new writers, offering space to innovative work which demands to be performed aloud.

Six outstanding pieces of fiction have been selected from over 400 entries. Their debut performances are hosted by the judges: poet, novelist and playwright, Deborah Levy; novelist and short story writer, A L Kennedy; and critic, novelist and broadcaster, Jonathan Meades.

RICHARD BARLOW is a student of creative writing at Lancaster University. His razor-sharp and thoughtful piece, Stanley Kershaw Flew, flashes by in quickfire images, like those glimpsed from a moving train.

CARELLIN BROOKS writes poetry, short stories, and journalism and is working on a DPhil on queer theory. She performs Dog Story, a disturbing, seductive meditation which delves the depths of fantasy and family.

CAS BEAU COHEN is a film-maker whose works include It's a Wonderful World and Il Terroristi Visivi. He presents Showboating, a hard-hitting monologue which catches the thoughts of a boxer in the ring.

ANTHONY DOWNEY, whose play Noone was broadcast on Irish National Radio in 1994, reads from The Way He Sat, a searching investigation into murder, motive, and doubt.

WILLIAM FIREBRACE is an architect currently working in Berlin. He reads from his as-yet-unpublished novel, Things Worth Seeing, which evokes the chaos of Europe in 1938, and focuses on the Chaik family, whose domestic peace is shattered.

JANE ORMEROD works with text in a visual manner and has exhibited in various London galleries. In Thrush, she trespasses into birdland, offering a surrealist exploration of the pleasures of feathers, claws, and beaks.

Project Director: Joanna Labon. Project Co-ordinator: Sarah Partridge.
New Blood is supported by the Arts Council of England.

CLIVE BARKER: IMAGINING THE HORRIFIC

Clive Barker has long been a leader in the fantasy/horror genre. His novels, including Weaveworld, Great and Secret Show, are international bestsellers, and his Hollywood movies, Hellraiser, Nightbreed and Candyman, have provoked both controversy and huge box office returns. Barker combines drawing, painting, film-making and writing with the intention of 'making the subconscious accessible'. He discusses his new novel, Everville (Minerva), and his artworks, and the connection between fiction and fantasy.

LEO BERSANI: HOMOS

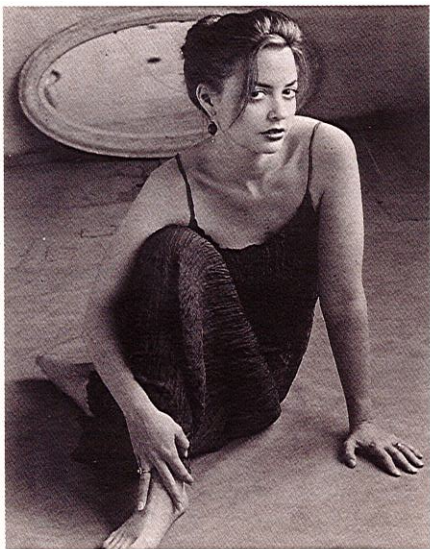

Professor of French at the University of California at Berkeley, Leo Bersani is acclaimed for his incisive and controversial explorations of art, literature and life in books including The Culture of Redemption. In Homos (Harvard) he asks whether, in the age of increasing acceptance of gays and lesbians, homosexuals can reveal themselves without becoming captive to society's idea of who they are, and melting into an oppressive culture. In 'homo-ness' Bersani sees the potential to reformulate human relations.

Eleven million people worldwide have taken Prozac, and the number is increasing, with prescriptions in the UK on the rise. Writer and music critic Elizabeth Wurtzel is worried about the trendiness of Prozac, which is offered to treat everything from mild distress to the dysfunctional behaviour of pets. Having taken the drug for almost a decade, to treat her frequent black moods, Wurtzel is well-placed to discuss its values and dangers. In Prozac Nation: Young and Depressed in America (Quartet), she recounts her history of depression and psychoactive drugs, and raises issues of medication and emotional illness with Julie Wheelwright, author of Amazons and Military Maids (Pandora).

CROSS-DRESSING WORKSHOPS WITH DIANE TORR

WALK LIKE A MAN. TALK LIKE A MAN.

Tickets £45, £40 members, £35 Minimalist members

Cross-dressing impresario Diane Torr is back at the ICA by popular demand, following the success of her first UK cross-dressing workshop in November 1994. In London for her performance at the ICA, Torr presents two Drag King Workshops, and one Super King Workshop for women who want to go that little bit further. Together with a make-up artist, Torr transforms women into the man of their dreams - a power-dressed executive, a dandy-esque clubber, a clean-cut college boy... Following a detailed make-over and seminar, participants are invited to join Torr for a night on the town, where their new personae are put to the test.

6, 7 May 12 - 18.00hrs

DRAG KING WORKSHOPS

Following the workshop, participants are invited to join Torr's performance, Drag Kings and Subjects, as audience members or performers.

8 May 12 - 18.00hrs

SUPER KING WORKSHOP

The Super King Workshop concentrates on the development of male personae, so that participants feel comfortable to go anywhere that a man would.

PROVOCATIONS: PHILOSOPHY LIVE

21 May 10.30 - 16.30hrs

Tickets £15, £10 members and concessions

THE SCAPEGOAT CONFERENCE

A conference on the philosophy of the scapegoat, with a rare keynote address by leading French philosopher René Girard, Professor of French Language, Literature and Civilisation at Stanford University and author of The Scapegoat (Athlone). Girard's writings have, for more than three decades, challenged the orthodoxies of literature, anthropology, religion and psychoanalysis, in seminal works such as Violence and the Sacred and Things Hidden Since the Foundation of the World. The ambition of his thought has been likened to the intellectual giants of the 19th century. From his earliest critical work culminating in the classic Deceit, Desire and the Novel, to the highly original global theory of culture which took the French intelligentsia by storm, Girard's ideas of mimesis and the scapegoat have been central to late 20th century European thought. He is joined by a panel of cultural historians and critics including Sander Gilman, author of Freud, Race and Gender.

This conference, the last event in the series THE SCAPEGOAT, is supported by The Cultural Department of the French Embassy, The French Institute and Athlone Press.

Consultants: Simon Critchley and Sonu Shamdasani

KEITH KHAN

WIGS OF WONDERMENT

A performance installation challenging western notions of beauty, objectification and the 'exotic'. The audience is invited on a sensory journey to explore their relationship to black style and fashion. With a bombardment of wigs, beauty products, costumes and objects, Khan confronts internalised racism and the commodification and appropriation of black popular culture.

25 May 20.00hrs

Tickets £3, £2 members and concessions

CARNIVAL TALK

Carnival and related practices have historically focused on the body, clothed and costumed, as a site and symbol of cultural resistance. This panel addresses the impact of carnival and its influence on artists using costume. Speakers include Greta Mendez, Clary Salandy, and Jacob Ross. Chaired by Michael Macmillan.

Presented in association with LAB

26 May 12.00 - 21.00hrs, 27 & 28 May 12.00 - 19.30hrs

Admission free with day membership

NINA EDGEBONUS BALL: AN INSTALLATION ABOUT EXISTENCE

An installation confronting notions of genetic cleansing and challenging men's insecurities around lineage.

"For whom does the bell curve, this time round?

The eugenie has been rubbed up. He comes out of the lamb delivers one swift kick in the human genodes and bingo bonanza, free market ancestry. Through Fanon's open door of consciousness stands an oracle, which lines will thrive."

right:
Carmelita Tropicana

30 - 31 May 20.00hrs

Tickets £7, £5 ICA members & concessions

CARMELITA TROPICANA (USA)MILK OF AMNESIA

In her most powerful and provocative appearance to date, Carmelita Tropicana performs MILK OF AMNESIA - a one-woman travelogue that shifts from the US to Cuba, from modern times to colonial times, and presents an array of characters, some male, some female, some animal.

MILK OF AMNESIA is directed by Ela Troyano, with set design by Kukuli Velarde, and original music by Fernando Rivas.

RONALD FRASER-MUNRO ACTIONS

At large around the ICA, a series of actions and events by a roll-call of peculiar characters, assembled and performed in a twisted homage to Frantz Fanon by multi-disciplinary artist Ronald Fraser-Munro. Throughout Mirage, VAGUE - THE NAKED SHROUD, a video montage by Ronnie Fraser Munro, plays in ICA bar.

22 May 19.30hrs GALLERY II

Admission free with day membership

CESARE CAPPUCINO

Cesare Cappucino, the world's hippest cardinal, returns with his Kelvin Klien undergarmento and a few choice lines from the scripture according to Saint Nike and Saint Reebok.

24 May 19.00hrs GALLERY II

Admission free with day membership

COCO CHAMELLE

CoCo Chamelle, fashion guru and perfume heiress, engages spectators with a stunning Yvette Pemberton design and her unique blend of poetry, balletic abstraction and nasal sensuality - as befits one of the world's most sensitive camels.

24 May 21.00hrs ICA BAR

Admission free with day membership

MC KAMELHEAD

The up front, downtown, and off-his-nut MC Kamelhead returns with an evening of DJs, music and his own mix of fashion, sound and sexual suggestion.

29 May 18.00hrs ICA BAR

Admission free with day membership

SIR ARTHUR STUFFED-SHIRT & HIS REVOLVING MONACLE

Sir Arthur takes afternoon tea in a makeshift salon. As he sips and croons his way through the 20s towards the 90s he laments, with absurd nostalgia, the passing of evening dress, sock-suspenders and the invention of the corgi trouser press.

30 May 19.30hrs GALLERY II

Admission free with day membership

L'HOMME BLANC

L'Homme Blanc, chameleon, dresses and undresses with abandon, in a movement piece revealing just what nature gave to the human race and how it can be misinterpreted.

THE RIPPLE EFFECT

The ICA's monthly platform for new artists and new work
Supported by Red Stripe

1 May 20.00hrs

Tickets £5, £3 members and concessions

SPUNKFLAKES + SUGAR & VICE

A double bill of shows about sex in our times, by two groups of artists who are as much at home in clubland as in performance spaces. Spunkflake's Family is a tapestry of incestuous sketches and bizarre snippets drawing on pop-culture icons, from Carrie to Cadbury's Flake, to celebrate the joys of forbidden pleasure. Marissa Carr and Alison Cochs' own experiences of the sex industry are the heart of a new performance looking at the realities of life in the world of peep-shows.

IF I WERE YOU!

A season exploring the relationship between biography and autobiography, the impact and inspiration of other times on our own.

2 May 20.00hrs

SUANDI

THE STORY OF M

An emotionally charged performance drawing on autobiographical stories to capture the life of a woman who faced a tough world with unflinching optimism. With family album slides flashing around her, we meet M chatting away in a white-screened hospital ward and are taken on a journey from the emerging multi-racial Liverpool of the 1920s to life in Britain now. A funny and touching performance that takes on a history of prejudice and shines as a testimony of survival.

3 May 20.00hrs

DOROTHEA SMARTT AND SHERLEE MITCHELL FROM YOU TO ME TO YOU

Two daughters capture the lives and deaths of their parents and the passing of the first post-war generation of migrants from the Caribbean. Through the evocative writing of Dorothea Smartt and the extraordinary collections of family photographs assembled and projected by Sherlee Mitchell, the piece is an intimate look at the legacies of parents and children in the crossing-over from the Caribbean to Britain and the crossing from life to death.

KYLE DECAMP

LADYLAND

with soundscore by David Linton

The stories of eleven women who played a part in the mythic life of Jimi Hendrix. Drawing on interviews and appearances, LADYLAND is a new story of Hendrix's times which explores the reality of the storytellers themselves as they become caught up in the act of myth-making.

Kyle deCamp is an award-winning New York artist whose work explores ideas about perception, memory and experience through the integration of performance, pop culture and fragments from the everyday world.

SUMMER EXHIBITIONISTS

ICA EDUCATION

ICA INTERACTIVE

Amazed? Excited? Frustrated? Confused? Or just want to talk?

The ICA has formed a team of staff to welcome visitors and create new opportunities to participate in our programme of events.

The ICA Interactive team are present in the building to talk to you. We can give information about the ICA and its specific programmes, lead informal gallery talks and tours of the building, hear your views and ideas. We also work with artists and Education staff to provide workshops and other activities for education groups both at the ICA and in other community and education centres.

All ICA visitors are invited to join our daily gallery tours (13.00hrs and 18.00hrs) and participate in the open workshop in the Cinematheque on Mondays 12.00 - 19.00hrs.

We are also available to meet and talk to individual visitors who may request information or just wish to chat about the ICA programme. Please ask at the Box Office if you would like one of our team to meet with you.

The formation of the ICA Interactive team is a pilot project supported by the Arts Council of England, the London Arts Board and the Paul Hamlyn Foundation.
